

Elements of Social Commentary	Needs Further Development	This is working really well!!
Claims: Does the claim connect/support the issue you are focusing on? Does the claim make a compelling argument?	Yes the claim is supported by the issue being focused on. Increased outreach will help encourage female fly fishers.
Evidence: Does the evidence address the claim? Citations: Are the citations formal? Can we find these sources in the real world?	Yes, the example of the clinic in Taos helps show the high turnout and the feedback from participants. This shows that there is interest in women but lack of a sense of belonging.
Does this social commentary address the root cause(s) of the issue the author is highlighting?	Yes, the evidence address the cause of the issue by highlighting the lack of outreach and community for the women.
Organization: is this social commentary organized in a way that is easy to follow and understand?	Yes the format is very easy to follow, there is no constant rambling and gets straight to the point.

Images: do the images provide background or evidence for the commentary?	No images.
---	-------------------	--